Title: Acadia Hotel fonds

Dates of Creation: 1958-1963

Physical Description: 8 cm of textual records

Administrative History:

The Acadia Hotel was a hotel located at 267-4th Avenue in Kamloops, B.C., and was part of the Acadia Block along with a variety of other businesses over the years. Construction of the Acadia Block began in 1912 by the Western Trust Company, guaranteed by trustees Dr. R.W. Irving and A.J. Passage, and was originally referred to as the Kamloops Syndicate Building. It was built by Johnstone and Company after designs by Kaufman and Phillips. After the building was finished the portion built to hotel specifications was purchased by Aubrey Edgar Sjoquist, who ran the hotel as the Acadia Chambers until 1953. At this time the hotel was referred to simply as the Acadia Building, but rental of rooms continued to occur. In 1952 the Acadia Building was bought by Dr. H. Grafton and Dr. S.A. Wallace. 1956 saw the hotel gain a new proprietor, A.B. Kropinski, who renamed the operation the Acadia Hotel. It seems that he also rented out lodging for longer tenancies, referring to these rooms as the Acadia Lodge and Acadia Apartments. In 1972 Kenneth W. Lepin bought the Acadia Building and continued to rent rooms under the Acadia Lodge and Acadia Apartments monikers. A year later Lepin would bring in Mrs. Ann La Casse to manage the Acadia Apartments. The property later suffered an extensive fire, but the original brick façade of the building remains today, with the interior being comprised of apartments on the upper floors and a variety of businesses at street level.

Scope and Content:

Fonds consists of hotel registers from the Acadia Hotel from 1958-1963 and a small amount of loose papers related to the operations of the hotel.
